

5 Residential Development

Section 5.1: Medium and High Density Residential Development in the Technology Overlay

Changes to the TTCDA state enabling legislation allowing the review of medium and high density residential developments were adopted in the spring of 2011. As such, standards for site design, building design, landscaping, and signage for medium and high density residential development are found in those respective sections of these Design Guidelines.